PERSONS OF BOTH PARTIES INVITED
DAWSON BANQUET

Both Republican and Democrats Combine Tomorrow Night to Honor
Distinguished Bell Countian
—Many Reservations

ATTORNEY-GENERAL WILL BE HERE TOMORROW

Attorney-General Charles I. Dawson will not arrive in Middlesboro until tomorrow morning as he has been delayed by failure of the Court of Appeals, in which he has an important case, to adjourn. He will be here, however, in the morning, accompanied by Judge F. D. Sampson, and both will be at the banquet tomorrow night at the Hotel Cumberland in Mr. Dawson's honor. About two hundred reservations have already been made for the banquet which will be the biggest Republican celebration ever held in this section.

Regardless of politics or party affiliations, all of Mr. Dawson's friends are cordially invited to attend the banquet tomorrow night at the Cumberland Hotel at seven o'clock. Mr. Dawson is a resident of Middlesboro, Pineville and Bell county, and has many warm personal friends in both political parties, who will be glad to participate in helping to honor this, our distinguished citizen.

Those who do wish to attend must telephone John M. Miller, secretary telephone number 182, not later than Saturday morning by 10 a. m.

The management of the Hotel Cumberland reports that all their unoccupied rooms have been reserved and that a number of requests for reservations had to be denied. Mr. Dawson has reserved his room for tomorrow. The banquet will be held in the grill room of the hotel. The seating capacity of the room is only 250 and as it is expected that the guests will be twice this number, half of them will dine while the others wait. At least, this is the present plan.

State Commission to Let Work for Surface Treatment Road Pineville to Cumberland Gap

The State Highway Commission at Frankfort has advertised for bids for cleaning the surface, applying the bituminous material and spreading the covering material on the road between Pineville and Middlesboro, a distance of twelve miles, and between Middlesboro and Cumberland Gap, a distance of three miles. The bids will be opened April 20 at Frankfort.

This work to be done is what is known as surface treatment. The road was gone over last year by this method and will take from four to five weeks to complete it.

BIG BUILDING MOVEMENT AT BLUE DIAMOND MINES

Fifty houses are already under construction and 150 more are planned at the mines recently opened at St. Charles, Va., by the Blue Diamond Coal company of Virginia which has its headquarters here with the Crown coal company. Three entries for mines have been made and a large force of workers are on the field.

A sixty inch seam of high grade coal will be worked at the new mines which are located on a 2000 acre tract purchased several weeks ago from the Peabody interests. The industry which is now in its infancy will do much toward the development of the section.

THE WICKED FLEE—OFFICER PURSUETH
AND COAT TEARETH

No doubt "The wicked flee when no man pursueth" but what does he do when a man doth pursue and that man happens to be an officer? Well, for one thing, he not only flees but also leaves part of his coat behind, at least that is what this ebony-hued fugitive did last night.

Drunk and disorderly, the negro began his flight at the approach of Rees Watkins, night policeman. The officer grabbed him by the coat tail and endeavored to end the race but there was a loud rip, the garment tore from the man's body. The flight did not end here; and unimpeded by the coat, the negro increased his speed. Down Lombard avenue sped the twain, doubtless furnishing spectators with more amusement than would have been had at the movies.

Overtaking the fugitive, the officer grasped him by the shoulder which proved to be made of more substantial material than the coat and escorted him to jail. In police court, the negro was merely charged with being disorderly, the race being thrown in free.

CUT DOWN POSTAL STAFF, ECONOMY

Auxiliary Clerk Taken Off April 1—
Will Lower Local Office's Efficiency

Owing to the fact that the postal funds are running low and that no appropriation was made before the hurried adjournment of the last session of congress, the postal department is compelled to economize and the auxiliary clerk at the local postoffice will be cut off from April 1 to July 1. The high standard of efficiency maintained by the Middlesboro postoffice will be impossible with the loss of the extra clerk.

On Sundays a clerk will be on duty two and one-half hours in the morning and afternoon for the purpose of disposing of the first-class mail. The parcel post window will not be open on Saturday nights and no delivery of mail will be made on national holidays. As the auxiliary clerk does not come under the civil service working regulations, the loss of his service is perhaps more serious than could occur in the case of a regular clerk who is not allowed to work more than eight hours in ten.

O. K. Lambert, district inspector, was in town yesterday and appraised Postmaster Chas. E. Cooke of the drastic measures taken to eke out the postal funds until another appropriation is made July 1. A letter from Harry S. New, postmaster-general, states that there has been an unprecedented increase in the volume of mail during the past year and for this reason the loss of the auxiliaries will tend to cripple the service throughout the country.

HEALTH EXHIBIT

Largest Medical Display Ever Assembled for National Exposition
April 26—May 5

By Associated Press.
LOUISVILLE, Mar. 23.—What is described by state board of health officials as the largest and most important exhibit of medical, surgical and dental equipment and materials, showing scientific resources for prevention and cure of disease, ever seen in Kentucky is under construction for the national health exposition which will be held here April 26 to May 5. Members of the state and county medical and dental societies, cooperating with the medical and dental schools of the University of Louisville are assembling instruments, appliances and machinery of great scientific interest and high value. Materials and specimens that are almost priceless are being sent for the exhibit by college laboratories and museums and by individuals.

A clinic wherein all visitors to the exposition may receive a free physical examination, including an x-ray test, will be held in connection with the exhibit and lectures will be given by specialists on health promotion and disease prevention.

Dr. Arthur T. McCormack, secretary of the state board of health, declared that two hours spent at the exposition will add five years to life of the visitors if he will but heed the lessons in hygiene taught there.

K. U. STARTS PROGRAM OF EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENT

Work of replacing the small copper wires of the Kentucky Utilities company lines with large copper wires between Tejay and Vanilla, a distance of about four miles, has been done. Use of the larger wires was made necessary by the increased demands for service.

This is a part of the program of work planned by the company to facilitate the handling of heavier loads in Bell and Harlan counties. Other improvements of greater importance are planned for Middlesboro and other points in this section.

The recent winds and heavy rains in this section have not impaired the services of the Utilities company, according to officials. Profiting by past experience of weather damages, the lines have been made practically storm proof in places where such damages have occurred.

AID SHERIFF IN AUTO REPAIRS

Claiborne Countians Help A. J. Greer
After Moonshiners Burn
His Car

TAZEWELL, Tenn., March 23.—Sheriff A. J. Greer and a company of his deputies recently went into the Caney Valley settlement to raid stills which had been reported to the sheriff. They went by automobile as far as Coram Hurst's store where they were obliged to leave the car, and travel the rest of the way by foot, the country being very rough.

While the officers were gone an enemy to law enforcement set fire to the auto, and when the officers returned the body of the car was almost destroyed. The officers found a still and mash, all fermented and ready for distilling, and watched it for nearly 24 hours, hoping the moonshiners would come to the still, but in vain. The officers then destroyed the beer and brought the still to Tazewell.

Now the law enforcement element of this county is making up funds to replace the damage done to the car. The following letter has been received:

"Harrogate, Tenn., March 20, 1923.
"Mr. A. J. Greer, sheriff, Tazewell.
Dear Sir: The members of the Harrogate W. C. T. Manufacturer Says He Intends Solve Country's Coal Problems—Local Offices Say No Immediate Development

PEABODY HOLDINGS BOUGHT MERELY FOR FUTURE RESERVE

By Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mar. 23.—It was officially confirmed at the offices of Henry Ford here today that the automobile manufacturer had purchased one hundred and twenty thousand acres of undeveloped coal land in Kentucky and the statement was made that Ford intended to solve the country's coal problems by "using every piece of coal twice."

By the purchase of this property, it was officially announced at the Ford offices, Ford comes into the possession of a vast tract of Virginia coal lands with a reserve coal supply of five hundred million tons. This property, added to other coal lands previously purchased, bring the total Ford acreage to one hundred and sixty five thousand acres. From these holdings Ford hopes within a year, will come sufficient coal to supply for all his factories in every part of the country for as many of the industries in this district as care to buy his coal and have fuel left sufficient to supply part of all industrial users of his coal to install furnaces that would remove only the gas and similar substances, leaving fuel unimpaired for domestic purposes. Coal, after this process, will be sold to heat the homes of one hundred thousand workers throughout the country. He explained that coal, after such a process would be more valuable than it was before.

Ford's latest purchase cost between three and four million dollars, it was officially announced. It was also stated that he will act quickly in developing the new properties.

PINEVILLE, Mar. 23.—The latest purchase of Kentucky coal land by Henry Ford was made merely as a future reserve, according to E. H. Mould today. Mr. Mould had been in charge of the Peabody Syndicate offices in Pineville which have now been changed to the Fordson Coal company offices. He will remain in charge of them, with headquarters at Pineville, and there will be no further change whatsoever in the office force.

Mr. Mould says that no improvements of any kind will be made on this land within five years at the very least, and probably a great deal longer time. Work of engineering and grading will be continued a sat present but there is absolutely no prospect of present coal development.

As far as the present need of coal is concerned, Ford's supply is sufficient, Mr. Mould continued, but he, like every other farseeing manufacturer of today, is looking to the future when coal is bound to be more scarce. He recognized this as a good buy and took it for a future reserve. Mr. Mould also said that the price quoted in the press rumors was greatly exaggerated but he would not say what the price was.

A THOUGHT

A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast, but the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel.—Prov. 12:10.

THE SPRING CLEAN-UP

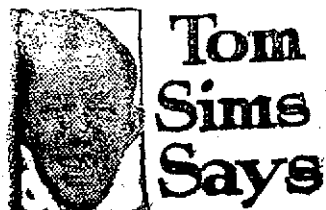

Some genius conceived the notion that a Clean Up Week or Clean Up Day, if appointed during the spring months, would appeal to the popular psychology at that particular time. It did so and today such occasions are observed in thousands of communities. The desire for improvement seems to influence people at this season. If you asked a man to clean up disorder around his place in July, he might eagerly postpone the suggestion. But in spring some lure of our doors emphasized by the bright sunshine and soft breezes and cheerful bird songs, seems to put a new spirit into the heart. The man who at other times is indifferent to appearances, will come forth in his overalls and jumper, prepared for heroic deeds with rake, spade and bonfire. This impulse toward industry should be worked for all it is worth. A clean up day or week should be appointed in every community. The home folks should all be organized into an army of anti-litter workers, each family detailed to clean up its own refuse. Also they should be induced to add some touch of beauty to their grounds. Municipal authorities should be urged to make careful arrangements for street cleaning for the season. Landlords should be reminded that their buildings will rent better if kept well painted and repaired. An incessant stream of visitors passes through our towns today and Middlesboro is under constant inspection by visitors. These folks form impressions, not so much from superficial appearances of prosperity like costly buildings, as by the degree of neatness and taste shown in the care and improvement of dwellings and their surroundings. Indications like these reflect the character of the people who live in a place. A city that keeps itself scrubbed and combed, whose homes show a love for beauty, by neat lawns and pretty flowers, gains a name for self respect and culture. Visitors pass along the word that it's a fine town.

ADVENTURE AND CRIME

A social worker tells the story of a 15-year-old boy in an eastern city who was sent by his employer to deposit $600 in the bank. Instead of doing so he conceived the joyful notion of going west. A few hundred dollars looked like a fortune to him. He invited two chums, boys of 12 and 13 to go. The eight-year-old brother of one of them, fascinated by the plans, insisted on going along. All four took a train to New York, where the ring-leader happily treated the bunch to new suits of clothes, including long trousers for the youngest member of the party. Then boy-fashion they went to a movie and followed that with a feast of all sorts of indigestible goodies. Their adventure came to a timely end when they made inquiries about a train to Chicago. By that time the littlest lad was tired out and rather homesick, and the others had begun to wake up from their bright dream. All four were returned to their parents, the money refunded to the employer, and the social worker who rescued the boys gave some good advice to the fathers. The story is of interest because it is typical of so many child runaway cases. None of the boys were vicious. The lad who stole the $600 was not a young criminal, and because this first escapade has been wisely handled by the grown-ups involved it is likely he will never steal or run away again. He'll probably grow up to be a useful citizen.

On the other hand, if the case had not been handled wisely, if the boys' captors had lacked understanding and sympathy, if harsh punishment instead of care and guidance had been their lot, they might have gone on to worse adventures and crime.

Fellowship of Prayer

FRIDAY
Devotion to Christ

"She hath done what she could," Mark 14:8.

Read Mark 14:1-11.

"The ideal home-maker is the ideal philanthropist. She dresses her family with scarlet, and she reaches forth both hands to the great world which needs her."

MEDITATION: See how Jesus evaluates sentiment! The devotion of Mary that broke the alabaster box is one with woman's God-given impulses which begot mother love and all the family of altruistic passions which elevate the race. Well may we reverence it!

HYMN: In simple trust like theirs who heard, Beside the Syrian sea, The gracious calling of the Lord. Let us, like them, without a word, Rise up and follow thee.

PRAYER: O Heavenly Father, shed forth thy blessed Spirit richly on all the members of this household. Make each of us an instrument in thy hands for good. Purify our hearts, strengthen our minds and bodies, fill us with mutual love. Let no pride, no self-conceit, no rivalry, no dispute, ever spring up among us. Make us earnest and true, wise and prudent, giving no just cause for offense; and may thy holy peace rest upon us this day and every day, sweetening out trials, cheering us in our work, and keeping us faithful to the end, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

THE FINISH

By Berton Braley

The way to San Francisco, at least the way we came, Is forty hundred miles or so, and no two miles the same! We've walled through the South-land's mud—and mud is mud down South. We've climbed the mountain passes and we've known the desert's drouth. Ten hours day of chugging on, in rain and snow and sun Have brought us to the Golden Gate; our Fluorine is done. But just to know the magic of San Francisco's thrill And gaze upon her hills again—it sure is worth it all!

The spirit of the old-time west is passing, so they say, But in this blithe and happy town it flourishes today. The olden camaraderie, the glamor and romance Of daring forty-niners who would at ways take a chance Still dwell within the hearts of men amid this joyous town Where fortune, like the city streets, runs gaily up and down. Life tingle like the ocean wind and it is good to be Once more among the seven hills that smile upon the sea!

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO LESLIE HAMILTON

MY DEAR, DEAR GIRL:

Wait until you see Priscilla Bradford and you will be rather ashamed that you asked me if I ever loved her.

The girl has just about as much appeal to a man as a wooden Indian maiden set up in front of a cigar store. A man only looks at her because he knows that just beyond her probably will find something that pleases him—in the case of the Indian maiden, of good smoke; in the case of the Puritan maid, a modern girl just like you.

Of course you understand, dear that I know all about the methods of modern journalism and I did not mean anything derogatory to you except to explain to you how the paragraph must look to mother. If Priscilla had just kept still mother would never have known anything about it. I wonder if I wrote to you that I had a letter from your father—strange, isn't it, how fathers make you think of something else besides the romance of joy of coming married life?

Leslie dear, do you really think you love me well enough to give up a great deal for me? You must remember, that we will have to begin life with what, to you, will be comparatively poverty.

Of course I have great hopes for my future, but it will probably be a small apartment and one maid-of-all-work for at least a year or two. When I see you we will have to talk over these matters. I did not want to spoil the newness of our love bringing money into it while you were here.

You and I want to begin right, do we not, dear? I know I have been a very extravagant fool, but I am beginning to already think where I can economize. We won't let the roadster go, will we? It seems to me nothing was so joyous in all our lovely life as were those beautiful rides.

Spring is coming, too, when everything will be beautiful. Oh, darling, I can hardly wait. The days go so slowly. I am bucking into work however, and hope to put over an advertising contract before our wedding day that will give me a splendid bonus and perhaps raise my salary to five thousand a year.

Dearest you need not meet Priscilla unless you wish, but I think it would make a great hit with mother if you did. However, do as you please, and you will please your loving JACK.

LETTER FROM LESLIE HAMILTON TO PRISCILLA BRADFORD

MY DEAR MISS BRADFORD:

I have just hear from my fiancé—Mr. John Alden Prescott, that you, a childhood friend of his and a girl from his home town, are in the city, and I hasten to write to you this note.

Of course you know how very busy I am preparing for our marriage, which takes place on the 22nd of next month, barely four weeks away, and I wonder if you would waive ceremony and take tea with me at the Country Club Friday afternoon? I would be very much please to have Miss Alden come, also. I have met her at the Adamsons a few times. She will probably remember me. John told me that she is a distant relative of his, although he has never seen her. Of course you will both come to John's and my wedding, and as he says that you are an especial favorite of his mother, we are making reservations for you in the same suit with Mrs. Prescott during her stay in the city from the 21st to the 23rd.

I am very sorry that I did not know you were here before, but, of course, I did not even know John until I went to Albany, a little over a month ago. Hoping to see you Friday—I shall bring my sister Alice with me, and, if you wish, we will call for you—I remain,

Sincerely,
LESLIE HAMILTON.

NOTE FROM PRISCILLA BRADFORD TO LESLIE HAMILTON

Miss Bradford and Miss Alden will be pleased to take tea with Miss Hamilton at the Country Club on Friday, at four o'clock.

LETTER FROM LESLIE HAMILTON TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

Enclosed please find the most formal acceptance of my very informal invitation to the Country Club to your friend, Priscilla Bradford. I don't anticipate, John dear, that I am going to have a very good time; and if I get a chance, I want you to know that I shall say something to her about sending that newspaper gossip to your mother.

Of course you know that it will probably be a cat meeting cat, and one of us is apt to get scratched—for, lover mine, you didn't really know I was such a nasty thing, did you? I don't intend that Priscilla Bradford or any other girl shall think that you ever have cared for her.

You haven't ever loved anyone else. John have you? Really I forgot to ask on this before, but it is very important; did you ever tell any other girl that you loved her? I shall be unhappy until you have answered that question for your loving LESLIE.

The world gets better. You seldom see detached cuffs now.

CHINA ROSES

Shepherd in delicate Dresden china, loitering ever the while you twine a Garland of oddly azure roses, All for a shepherdess passing fair; Poor little shepherdess waiting there All the time for you china posies, Posies pale for her jet-black hair!

Doesn't she wait (oh, the anxious glances!)

Flowers for one of your stately dances, A crown to finish a dainty toilette. (Haven't the harps just now begun, Minuets 'neath a china sun?)— Doesn't she dread that the dust may soil it,

When, oh when the boy will be done?

Summer and winter and still you linger, Lagard lover with lazy finger, Never your little maid's wreath completing, Still half-strung are its petalled showers;

Must she wait all her dancing hours, Wait in spite of her shy entreating, Wait for ever her azure flowers?

—P. R. Chalmers, in Punch.

TEN GIRL SCOUT LAWS

From the rules of the Girl Scout movement, as set forth in the constitution and by-laws of the Girl Scouts, Inc., the official handbook "Scouting for Girls," and the "Blue Book of Rules for Girl Scout captains".

Soliciting by Girl Scouts prohibited: No Girl Scout troop may raise money for any purpose whatsoever, by soliciting funds, or selling anything, whether tickets, or goods, in streets, hostess, restaurants, etc. This ruling is absolute, and applies to Scouts in uniform or out of it, with or without supervision by Scout officers.

All public handling of money that may be necessary in connection with fairs, bazaars, or entertainments must be done by Girl Scout officers, or Council members, or some responsible adult acting for the officers or parents of Scouts.

Helping Other Organizations: If a troop desires to help an authorized movement, fostered by a responsible organization, for furthering a good cause, by selling tickets, the Captain may take for the troop a certain number of tickets for which the troop will be held accountable, with the understanding that they are to be sold in advance only with her immediate family, or in the building where the entertainment is held. But in no case should Scouts in uniform or out of it either together or as individuals, participate in tag days, or insoliciting which involves asking for or handling money in public places. The National Conference on Child Welfare considers any practice of this sort extremely detrimental to children, particularly to girls.

The Local Director is the executive officer of the local council. She has charge of the headquarters and other property of the local organization, has general supervision of the captains and instructs new captains in their duties. She organizes new troops, receives and forwards to National Headquarters all applications for captains' and lieutenants' commissions, keeps all records of the council and of the troops and such information concerning them as may be necessary for the work. It is her duty to attend public meetings connected with the organization, and she represents Girl Scouts at the meetings.

WOMANLY TROUBLES

'Twas Hard for Her to Stop Work, But This Texas Lady Says She Had to Go to Bed.— Helped by Cardui.

Salado, Texas.—"I suffered a great deal with womanly troubles," says Miss Ira Lillian Hart, of Route 1, this place. "I would, for a day or two, feel drowsy, stupid and listless; didn't feel like doing my work. "I would suffer pains in my sides and back, and very severe headaches. "I am the housekeeper, and it was very hard for me to stop, but I would get in such a misery I would have to go to bed. I heard of Cardui, and that it was good for this suffering. The very first bottle I took seemed to help me. I did not suffer near so much, so I sent for the second. It did so much good for me, I can't say enough for Cardui, for it certainly was a friend in need."

Women who feel the need of something to help relieve, or prevent, such troubles, should profit by the experience of thousands of other women, and try this mild, harmless tonic.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

By Charles P. Stewart
Labor's plan to abolish capitalism in Great Britain needn't be taken seriously just yet.

It's true that Labor's the second party in numerical strength in Parliament, but that doesn't mean, in case the Conservatives should go out of power, that the Laborites would come in to stay. Ramsay MacDonald, it's a fact, undoubtedly would be appointed premier in such an event, but it's a foregone conclusion that the Conservatives and Liberals would combine against him, and he'd have to resign. Then it's possible that the premiership would be offered to David Lloyd George, the Liberal leader, who was premier before, or perhaps there'd be a national election without any further delay.

The road which is two and a half miles in length, has been completed and the survey is necessary before the final payment can be made to the contractors. Codel, and Byars of Winchester held the contract.

P. H. S. SENIORS TO GIVE "MUCH ADO ABOUT BETTY"

PINEVILLE, Mar. 23.—The four-act comedy, "Much Ado About Betty," will be staged by the seniors of the Pineville High school in the near future. Work has just started this week. The play is being given as a benefit for the annual, "The Pine Cone." Miss Bonnie James, head of the expression department, will direct.

PINEVILLE NOTES

R. H. Shipp, superintendent of the Pineville schools went to Barbourville Wednesday afternoon to make final arrangements for the debating contest.

Steve Watkins, division highway engineer, went to London Tuesday on business.

H. H. Asher, road commissioner, is in Frankfort on business.

George H. Marting went to Knoxville Wednesday on business.

W. W. Elan of Frankfort, editor of the Kentucky School News, was in Middlesboro this week on business.

ther experimenting. Anyway, an election's what things would come to pretty soon, because that's what happens in England, where administrations don't last for any definite term, except that there's a maximum of seven years fixed, whenever there's any doubt which party in Parliament has most votes.

And an election would be sure to mean a victory by the moderates over the radicals, of whom the latter make up the group behind the anti-capitalism proposals of Philip Snowden, who even among radicals, is considered pretty pronounced in his views.

Same As In The U. S. A. The British Conservatives and Liberals are conservative and liberal respectively in about the same sense that Republicans are republican and Democrats are democratic in the United States.

That is to say, they have their political contests between themselves and sometimes get pretty sore over them, but each would rather see the other in office than have a third party break in. Before they'd permit such a thing to happen, there's no doubt they'd unite, and together they'd have a large majority over the Labor vote.

Just to illustrate that they're not irreconcilably far apart, Andrew Bonar Law, now the Conservative leader and premier, didn't object to holding office for several years in the cabinet of David Lloyd George, who is head of the Liberal minority in Parliament now. Mr. Lloyd George, on the other hand, though pretty advanced in some of the views he expressed in his younger days, has so far towed down his ideas with years that the Conservatives seriously considered for awhile the plan of conscripting him to lead themselves—and almost certainly could if he'd given the word, which he didn't do, not because he wasn't conservative enough, but because he had other political ambitions of his own.

Radicals But Won't Pass

This is to say that Labor, as a whole isn't more radical in Great Britain than it is in the United States. It's considerably more so. But the time hasn't come for England to be Bolshevized. The Laborites are in favor of a levy on capital sufficient to relieve England of her pressing post-war financial embarrassments and this proposition has some support outside the party. If times stay as hard as they are now, it's conceivable that such a policy might win the endorsement of a majority of the voters. It would amount to some system of taxation designed to bear especially upon accumulated wealth, but there's no chance that it would take it all.

For even so drastic a program the time isn't ripe yet. The last election showed it.

Snowden's proposals are revolutionary, all right, but they won't be adopted. That's certain.

It's as if Myers London the Socialist member of the House of representatives, had proposed, at the last session of Congress, to socialize the United States. It would have been a radical suggestion, but nobody would have paid much attention to it, because every-body'd know that it wouldn't pass. Britain's Fears Of France The British government, according to all accounts, is growing more and more disturbed at the evident progress of negotiations between Paris and Berlin looking toward a settlement of the Ruhr troubles directly between France and Germany, without giving England any voice in the matter.

It just goes to show that the English are convinced France means if she can increase her power on European continent to a point where she's stronger than England wants her to be.

British commercial interests, cables say, are bringing pressure to bear on Premier Bonar Law to abandon his policy of standoffishness, so far as the Ruhr is concerned, and tell the French just where the line is beyond which Great Britain will consider it unfriendly in her to go.

Their Policies Clash One thing demanded by the dissatisfied English element with especial emphasis is an economic alliance with the United States.

This, indeed, is known to be, if obtainable, part of the present British premier's policy. He includes it in a broad general plan he has advanced already for better co-operation between the mother country and her overseas dominions, especially Canada and Australia.

In short, the development of a closer relationship between the English speaking countries is Bonar Law's aim.

Lord Curzon, the foreign minister, is determined, however, on adherence to the entente connection between England and France, through thick and thin. If the Bonar Law cabinet is to endure long, it seems to be the general judgment of English newspapers that it will be impossible for Bonar Law and Curzon, due to this basic difference in their views, to pull together in harness very long.

Willard Now Training For Fight With Floyd Johnson

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., March 22—Jess Willard's training camp has become a hive of activity, with the former champ preparing for his first real boxing match in three years. He is hardening his muscles with the hope of stretching Floyd Johnson on the canvas in a Madison Square Garden when they meet May 12.

Each day finds big Jess up early, and, in company with Harry Drake, London heavyweight, out on the road for a long walk over the rugged hills that surround the Missouri health resort.

Drake and some heavies from Kansas City form his squad of sparring partners.

Willard's mental attitude just now is the most interesting current study in pugilism.

No youngster coming fast and due for a title contest ever entered the training grind with more determination to make good than the 42-year-old Kansas farmer. Instead of the genial Jess, one finds a man of serious mien, who listens carefully to his advisers, with an avowed intention of forcing Jack Dempsey into the ring for a is done and prevent the other kind of kinks getting into one's anatomy.

Spading the garden is considered hard work by most people; in fact, it is hard work the way many people do it. The experienced gardener does not undertake to upturn the whole garden at a few spadefuls, but begins at one end and opens a deep, narrow furrow clear across the space to be spaded.

He then works from one side to the other much the same as a plowman would do, taking thin, deep slices of soil and always maintaining the narrow deep furrow or opening.

As each spadeful is lifted and turned over it is thoroughly pulverized with the edge or the point of the spade. This pulverizing during spading greatly reduces the work later when the seeds are planted. The bumps of earth also break up much easier while moist and before they dry out.

There are numerous little kinks to planting the garden.

One of these is to mark the rows by setting little pegs at each end of the garden plot before beginning to plant. This shows just how many rows of the different widths such as 12, 18, 24, and 30 inches are available and if necessary an adjustment can be made before any planting is done.

Another little kink is in stretching a garden line. In the first place the line should be of good, heavy, strong cord and two good stakes should be driven solidly into the ground at the ends.

After the line is tightly stretched between the two stakes, straighten it by lifting it near the center and allow it to drop into place just as a carpenter does in striking a chalkline.

Still another kink is the use of the corner of the hoe drawn with the edge against the tightly stretched line for making a drill in which to plant large seeds, such as peas, beans and corn.

For making small furrows level the hoe and mark along the line with the smooth rounded end of the handle.

The back of the hoe is perhaps the best tool for firming the soil over the seeds after they are planted and covered.

When it comes to cultivating the garden more of the same kind of kinks are at the gardener's back and call.

Pruning the tomato vines to a single stem and tying them to stakes gets them up out of the way of cultivation gives nice clean fruit and causes it to ripen earlier.

Driving the stakes along the row of peas and stretching three-foot of poultry netting upon them makes the best kind of support for the peas with much less labor than the old brush method.

After the peas are gathered the netting is rolled into a compact roll and stored overhead in the garage until next season.

Poles upon which the lima beans are to climb can be made to stand against the winds that blow bringing three or four of them together at the top and fastening them with wire.

Onions may be hastened in ripening by rolling an empty barrel over the tops after the bulbs are fully grown.

Love Hypnotism Holds Girl Lured Away From Home Six Months Ago, Says Father

AUGUSTA, Me., March 23—Love hypnotism lured Elsie Leuchter away.

She has been mysteriously missing six months. How long can the spell keep its grip upon her?

This is the belief and the question in the mind of August Leuchter, father of the 20-year-old girl who disappeared last September.

Though detectives operating throughout the United States and Canada have failed to find a clew, the father refuses to give up the search.

"If she could see her mother, her sister or me," he says, "I know the hypnotic spell would be broken."

The mystery revolves around a man of 30 who came to Augusta last summer, kept his room filled with girls' photographs obtained through answering ads in matrimonial journals and disappeared the day the girl went away.

A warrant charging seduction against the man, mentioning several names used in courtship by correspondence, is in the hands of the Augusta police.

"This was not an ordinary runaway," said Leuchter. "The man posed as an astrologer and swayed Elsie by strange feats. He predicted hailstones, and the storm came." He told her the hour of her birth—5 a. m. He said the stars predicted that unless she changed her mode of living she would be compelled to commit suicide within two months. She was hypnotized into eloping."

Leuchter's family lives here, but he spends much of his time in New York where he operates the Electrolytic Laboratories. He has broadcasted a message by circulars and wireless pleading with his daughter to come home.

The missing girl is described as 5 feet 3, weighing 130 pounds, with light hair and complexion, gray-blue eyes, and wearing shell glasses.

Chicago Woman Rejects Big Pay To Pursue Duties of Home Life

CHICAGO, March 23.—Mrs. Florence Schec Robnett of this city could go out any day and command a tidy salary running into five figures.

But Mrs. Robnett has turned down many a tempting offer—to bake cakes for her husband.

During the war Mrs. Robnett achieved nation-wide prominence by her phenomenal success as manager of the employment department of the Illinois woman's committee, Council of National Defense. She could size up the attitude of an applicant for a job almost at a glance and fit the round pegs into the round holes.

Her psychological tests for applicants have become so successful and noted among big business men that they conferred on her the title of "Go Getter."

But Mrs. Robnett is through. "Happiness," she affirms, "is the supreme achievement in life. I have found mine in my home."

"Carrying water on both shoulders—that is, caring for a home and a business, both—seems to me too big a problem for any woman to tackle and do justice to each."

And who, do you think, is happier in the Robnett family? Hubby, of course.

"Boy, say I'm not glad!" he smiles. "Those pancakes! They're done to a psychological brown. Their flavor is beyond compare."

Pouring Hot Liquid

When filling a glass with hot liquid put a silver spoon in before pouring the liquid. This will temper the glass so it will not break.

To Keep Flannel Soft

Repeated launderings frequently make flannel hard and shrunken. It may be restored to its former softness by soaking it in gasoline.

SPANISH GOWNS FOR SLIM MISS

Suggestive of castanets, La Paloma and the swathing shawls of Andalusia are new frocks with wide yokes drawn tightly around the hips and skirts that ripple about the ankles.

It is only fair to say that these frocks are traps for the unwary. Perhaps in Spain they are worn by dowagers, but in America they are recommended only for the slim and young.

Two models illustrate how the fashion is adapted to afternoon gowns of spring figured and embroidered fabrics.

Sand Checks Burning

If you cake tins have worn so thin that your cakes burn on the bottom before they are entirely baked, scatter a little sand over the oven shelf before putting in the pan. This will remedy the situation.

Thin Hair is No Reason Why It Can't Be Put Up Like Wealthier Locks Into an Enticing Coiffure

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 23.—If your hair is thin and scraggly and you "can't do anything with it" take cheer from Mrs. Augusta Eddy of this city.

Mrs. Eddy recently won first prize in a contest in which entrants were required to dress up heads of short, thin, unwieldy locks. Other contestants pleased the judges so that their coiffures were exhibited before a convention of hairdressers here. Even the bobbed-haired miss who has become sick and tired her short crop, could have gained many valuable suggestions for "putting 'em up" from this display.

Mrs. Eddy's prize winner exhibited a parted marcelled hair, high on the head with only a false braid across the back. The ears, of course, were covered. In fact, not a single coiffure shown at this convention attempted to uncover them.

"A woman does not need a wealth of hair to appear to good advantage," explains Mrs. Eddy. "One must simply make the most of marcelling and fluffing."

And there's the secret! Proper use of combs and small ornaments in addition, enables the hairdresser to get the same effects that are ordinarily obtained with heavy heads of hair.

"I purposely used a model whose hair is not heavy," Mrs. Eddy adds. "The hair as done loosely all over the head, but especially loose at the back. This gives an appearance of a heavy head of hair without the use of switches."
